I am married with four wonderful grown children. I was a teacher for close to twenty years and when I retired; I decided to pursue my love of photography and began Katherine Hayes Photography.

I fell in love with photography when I was finishing my graduate degree at Georgia State University, and spent several years studying on my own in addition to taking classes at The Spruill Arts Center and The New York Photography Institute. I have photographed children as well as weddings and now intend to focus on event photography.
