SONYA HENDERSON INGLE

Sonya is a native Smyrna resident who LOVES painting in oils when she's not busy with her day job. After a weekday of working in technology, she revels in the opportunity to use the right side of her brain for creative purposes. Over the past 10 years, Sonya has had the privilege of studying under renowned Atlanta portrait artists Marc Chatov, Christopher Meadows, and the late Jim Schell. However, Sonya gains the most pleasure in painting still life and landscapes.

Sonya's earliest exposure to oils was in her middle school years in the classes that she, her mother and sister (artist Wanda Crane) took from local Smyrna artist Grace Hollingsworth. However, she also gained insight into color, texture and composition from the experience she gained while working in the family's local flower shop. After putting her brush down for decades while pursuing a career and raising a daughter, she is very grateful to be engaging in the art community again.

Sonya is affiliated with the Alpha Artists Guild and River Lake Painters. She exhibits her works at the Abernathy Art Center.
