Barbara Ariail Anderson is a native Georgian. She and her husband, Dwight, make their home in Milton, Georgia. Before retiring from her career in the corporate world, Barbara enjoyed years of creative and artistic studies. Her art education proved to be both diverse and rewarding, as she studied custom designing and building furniture, leaded stained glass, window treatments, color theory, art history and design. Her interest in form, function and design led to the pursuit of a fulfilling Interior Design career.

Barbara has painted for years. She has been fortunate to have studied under very talented art instructors. Barbara was introduced to the study of watercolors under the watchful eye of Brenda Heath. She discovered the versatility of acrylic with Kip Rogers. She found a love of drawing and oil painting under the instruction of Chris di Domizio at the Old World Art Studio. Her creative talent has evolved to a style of traditional realism: painting landscape, floral, still life and birds.

Barbara participated in the 2009 and 2010 Great Chattahoochee River Paint Out and juried show in Roswell, Georgia. Her art work has been exhibited at the Bank of North Georgia in Roswell, Georgia and the Art in the Garden in Alpharetta, Georgia. Barbara's art has been shown in a number of juried shows.
